DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office Action is the answer to the Election filed on February 27, 2008, which paper has been placed of record in the file.
2. Claims 1-14 are elected for consideration.

Response to Election/Restriction

3. Applicant's election with traverse of Group I (claims 1-14) in the reply filed on February 27, 2008 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the grounds that not only claims 1-14 relate to verification of a check but claims 36-45 and 47 also relate to this; claims 15-35 and 46 that relate to subject matter concerning the monetary instrument itself. This is not found persuasive because claims 1-14 relate to verification of a check at point of sale location including scanning, obtaining, and verifying the check at point of sale location, but claims 36-45 and 47 does not relate to this. Also, claims 15-35 and 46 that relate to subject matter concerning the monetary instrument itself, does not relate to verification of a check at point of sale location.

Therefore, the requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Art Unit: 3692

5. Claims 3, 4, 10, 11, and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the claims recite “a single means” (“a check printer”). A single means claim, i.e., where a means recitation does not appear in combination with another recited element of means, is subject to an undue breadth rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph. In re Hyatt, 708 F.2d 712, 714-715, 218 USPQ 195, 197 (Fed. Cir. 1983) (A single means claim which covered every conceivable means for achieving the stated purpose was held nonenabling for the scope of the claim because the specification disclosed at most only those means known to the inventor.). When claims depend on a recited property, a fact situation comparable to Hyatt is possible, where the claim covers every conceivable structure (means) for achieving the stated property (result) while the specification discloses at most only those known to the inventor.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

6. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

7. Claims 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The claims, as presently claimed and best understood were reconsidered in light of the “Examination Guidelines for Computer-Related Inventions” and were found to be non-statutory. Discussion of the analysis of the claims under the guidelines follows.

As to claims 6-8, the claimed invention is implemented as Functional descriptive material per se. “A computer program product” recited in the claims is a Functional descriptive material. When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized. Compare In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d 1031, 1035 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (claim to data structure stored on a computer readable medium that increases computer efficiency held statutory) and Warmerdam, 33 F.3d at 1360-61, 31 USPQ2d at 1759 (claim to computer having a specific data structure stored in memory held statutory product-by-process claim) with Warmerdam, 33 F.3d at 1361, 31 USPQ2d at 1760 (claim to a data structure per se held nonstatutory). In this case, the claims recite “a computer useable medium having a computer logic recorded thereon” but the Specification does not recite any proper computer readable medium, the Specification only describes the data signals between the check printer and the computer in order to perform the claimed method. Thus, the statutory-looking claims 6-8 are non-statutory as the result of the Specification.

Therefore, claims 6-8 are non-statutory, because they are directed solely to Functional descriptive material per se.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3692

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 3-5 and 9-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hayosh, U.S. Patent No. 6,611,598.

Regarding to claims 3-5 and 9-14, Hayosh discloses a check verification system comprising:

a check printer adapted to print checks based on information provided thereto, the information including a MICR line that includes an ABA number of a bank and a customer account number... (column 2, lines 18-65, laser printer);

a check verifier adapted to verify checks based on the information on the MICR line provided to the check verifier by an entity desiring authentication of a check presented for payment, along with the key provided to the check verifier... (column 14, lines 5-10, verification reader).

Examiner submits that the claimed invention recites an intended use, although Hayosh fails to discuss the intended use which is to print and verify the hash value containing in the MICR line of a check, Hayosh's computer system is capable of printing and verifying the hash value containing in the MICR line of a check. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Hayosh's to include the feature above for the purpose of enhancing the security in processing a check.

“The recitation of a new intended use for an old product does not make a claim to that old product patentable.” In re Schreiber, 44 USPQ2d 1429 (Fed. Cir. 1997).

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claims 1 and 2 are allowed over the prior art of cited records.
